through unpaved roads, entering the Los Glaciares National Park. As soon as we leave El Calafate, on the righthand side, you can see the Argentino Lake with its Round Bay. Ones there, you will note an important variety of bird fauna, out of which the black neck swans, the flamingos, the steam ducks, the gallaretas and the cauquenes all stand out. You will also be struck by the yellow color of the fields, composed of a special type of grass named coirón, which provides the peculiar color.

During the first 40 km. we go through the panagonic steppe. At the entrance to the National Park you will see how the vegetation changes and is now composed in its majority of ñires, cherry trees, lengas, and flowers of different colors, among which the notro stands out for its intense red color. It is the typical flower of the Andine Patagonic Forest. It could be said that the Perito Moreno is a solidified water river, a mass of ice in constant movement. Glacial ice is the result of the accumulation of snowfalls along the centuries, which cause the release of the interior air with its own weight.

During this excursion we will stroll through the several walkways which allow you to observe this natural wonder from different angles. Return to the hotel.
